

July 1.

The following vessels also arrived here this morning and during the night from the Cape Shore and all with good trips: Schs. Arthur James, Diana, Patrician, Manhasset, Corona, Muriel, Monarch and Avalon, these crafts having from 150 to 340 barrels of salt mackerel each, and greatly swelling the receipts.

About 8 o'clock Boston added still more to the good news by reporting the arrival there from the Rips of sch. Corsair with 6000 large fresh mackerel and sch. Pontiac from the same place with 14,000 large fresh mackerel, and also that sch. Norma, Capt. Charlie Doucelte, was there from the Cape Shore, with one of the largest trips of the season, 400 barrels of salt mackerel and 200 barrels of fresh mackerel.

That ended the good story up to 8 o'clock this morning, so far as the arrival of the fares were concerned, but it does not begin to tell of the interest and excitement these arrivals afforded. The Board of Trade rooms and adjacent offices on "Fishermen's Corner" and all along the street, nothing was talked yesterday but mackerel, mackerel, mackerel. The story was continued last evening and taken up again this morning with renewed vigor, the bulletin board at the Board of Trade being the center of attraction.

The buyers were not long in making their offers and the owners were no longer in disposing of them, so that by 9 o'clock practically every fare was sold, the salt fish bringing $11 per barrel, which is a fine price.

During the night sch. Marguerite Haskins came in from a seining trip, one of her crew having died as reported in another column, and sch. Lottie G. Merchant, which went out only a few days ago, came back from the Rips mackerel grounds, where she had just got, with her mainmast sprung.

This morning sch. Pinta, another of the seining fleet, arrived, conveying a half sunken coaster, whose crew she had taken off, putting a prize crew on board to work her to port.

Capt. Vautier of the Pinta reported that he had been down on Cape Shore as far as Halifax, had experienced rough and foggy weather and had seen no fish, indeed there was not much chance to see any as it was so foggy.

The Cape Shore fleet this season comprised 41 vessels and of these 13 yet remain to arrive, schs. Arabia, Natalie J. Nelson, Selma, Mary F. Curtis, Elmer E. Gray, Madonna, Parthia, Electric Flash, Hattie M. Graham, Priscilla Smith, Terra Nova, Yakima and Aloha.

The fares of schs. Arthur James and Diana sold to George Perkins & Son at $11 per barrel.

The fare of sch. Cynthia sold to Fred Bradley.

The fares of sch. Ralph L. Hall, Indiana, Juno, Monarch and Maxine Elliott sold to the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Co. at $11 per barrel.

The fare of schs. Avalon and Patrician sold to William H. Jordan & Co. at $11 per barrel.

The fare of sch. Speculator sold to the Gloucester Salt Fish Co. at $11 per barrel.

Sch. Aloha was at Canso, N. S., Friday and took out a license and bought a supply barrels. The vessel then had 350 barrels of salt mackerel on board.

The catch of Cape Shore mackerel to date is 7987 barrels.

Ladies, how would you like to wear whale elbow LEATHER gloves? Gentlemen, would you care to have the upholstery of your lounging room done in whale leather? Well, such things may happen before long, and many of us may wear whale boots and shoes.

The British consul at Chicago has made a report to his government concerning the whaling industry carried on by Newfoundland fishermen. They have been attempting to make whale leather a commercial product and are said to be meeting with some success.

The average whale hide covers a surface of about 1500 square feet. A square foot of the hide weighs from two to five ounces and is priced as high as 50 cents. The leather is very tough, is said to have great wearing qualities and therefore may be adapted to the covering of furniture, buggy tops and seats and also to automobile uses. It is also contended that it can be used for boots and shoes. Leather made from the intestines of the whale resembles kid and is very thin and tough. It will take color readily and is to be offered to glove manufacturers for making the long-sleeved gloves now worn by women.

A REGULAR CORKER

Sch. Onato Gets Stock of $4200 on Recent Shacking Trip.

Amount Beaten But Once in the History of That Fishery.

Sch. Onato, Capt. J. Henry Larkin, stocked $4200 as the result of her recent shack trip to Cape North, the crew of 22 men sharing $106.59 gross and $98 clear as the result of their fine fare.

This is the second largest stock ever made on a shack trip in the history of the fishery, the high trip being sch. Ella M. Goodwin, Capt. James Goodwin, with only $200 more stock.

Capt. Larkin of the Onato is one of those tall, quiet and modest fellows, a born fisherman and a natural hustler, loving the sea and eager for fish. His success is deserved as it is the result of unremitting toil.

Hard To Corner.

The Gloucester skippers are organizing against Boston's new $3,000,000 fish trust. The waters are wide and the coast is long, they say, and they will market where they please. It may not be necessary, however, for them to resort to coercive tactics. No progress in the merger has been lately reported, and some signs seem to point to suspended animation. It is hard to corner the products of the deep.—Boston Record.

LOBSTERS INCREASING.Gratifying Result Noticed This Year on Coast of Maine.*All Due to the Good Work of Boothbay Harbor Hatchery.

Lobsters have not been so plentiful in Maine for years as at present, and extraordinary catches are reported all along the coast.

The present plentiful supply of lobsters is due to the action of the state and national governments, who offered a bounty for every mother lobster returned to an agent, who then had it returned to the water. In this way the eggs, which were previously destroyed, were given an opportunity to hatch.

Only four years ago it was predicted that the supply of lobsters along the Maine coast would be exhausted within a short time, but there is little or no danger of that now.

So far as the coast of Maine is concerned, credit for the improved situation belongs to the former commissioner of sea and shore fisheries, Hon. Alonzo R. Nickerson of Boothbay Harbor, and the United States representatives at the lobster hatchery there, which is in charge of Capt. E. E. Hahn, superintendent. Capt. Hahn was formerly in command of the United States fish commission sch. Grampus.

Mr. J. B. Rogers, formerly of the Ten Pound Island hatchery, is at the Boothbay hatchery as fish culturist.

During the past year Capt. Hahn has purchased about 14,000 lobsters for stripping at the government establishment. At the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, 1906, he had about 30,000,000 eggs on hand, and during the year over 140,000,000 eggs have been secured from the 14,000 lobsters. Nearly 175,000,000 eggs, therefore, have been handled during the year and distributed at different points along the Maine coast.

Every day at this season about 2,000,000 of the wrigglers escape from the eggs and are sent through a rubber tube into a jar of ever-fresh salt water. About 97 per cent. of the eggs put into the hatchery develop, but there is no way of telling how many of the wrigglers manage to struggle through early existence. That many do so is proved by the increased supply.

It is not unlikely that the government will take further steps to experiment on the propagation of the lobster and will endeavor to breed them artificially; that is, keep a number of males and females in a confined space and hatch the eggs.

July 3.

THE PRESCOTT CASE.Awaiting Arrival Home of Premier and Marine Minister.*Capt. Atwood Very Kindly Treated by Officials at Halifax.

Capt. Henry M. Atwood, manager of the Atlantic Maritime Co.'s fleet of fishing vessels, who went to Halifax on the day following the seizure of sch. Fannie E. Prescott, one of the company's vessels, by the Canadian cruiser Canada for alleged fishing within the three mile limit, arrived home here yesterday.

When asked about the trip, Capt. Atwood remarked that really there was little that could be said. He went to Halifax to look after the interests of the owners of the vessel, learn the facts in the case and secure, if possible, the release of the craft.

During his stay there he met many Canadian officials on business connected with the affair, and was very kindly received and treated with every courtesy and consideration possible.

The craft was still at the Halifax dockyard and the case had not been yet put into the admiralty court, but was held up pending the arrival home from England of Premier Laurier and the minister of marine and fisheries, when it is expected that the case will be considered at length and a decision reached.

Capt. Atwood says that all the officials were very nice to him, and felt that the whole matter should be held up pending the arrival of the two above named officials.
